

Claim

The cryotherapeutic facility, which consists of the cabin for locating the patient, the heat-isolating reservoir with a ventilator and a system for cryostatistics with heat-carrier consumption stimulator, is different from others with the fact that it additionally includes a system of utilization of processed gas which is performed by pipes with the ventilator of three-step valve, heat-carrier consumption stimulator is connected by means of a pipe with the heat-isolating reservoir, but the ventilator is installed on the pipe, which connects the cabin for locating the patient with the heat-isolating reservoir.